Hi Wendell, please approve my post. I have uncovered an issue involving corporate fraud affecting the data of millions of users. Thanks!

How about some more detail? We had a recent episode with another "whistleblower" and they turned out to be a crazy person (IMHO) and it was a huge headache and waste of everyone's time/energy.

It takes one to know one. Create a prompt in AI Studio, then delete it and empty your Drive trash. After that, restore the deleted files from the Drive trash using the Drive file recovery tool. Your prompt will work again. If this is how it works, Google never deletes anything, meaning there is no TTL, and paid users are spending money for nothing, since Google sells this adjustable TTL for money. Now, who is the fool or the crazy one?

Read the video description.
